The Commonwealth Accessible Australia Initiative: Increasing inclusion in Australian communities

The Australian Government is investing $17.1 million from 2024-25 to 2027-28 to increase inclusion in community spaces for people with disability across Australia through the Commonwealth Accessible Australia initiative (Accessible Australia).

The Australian Government will support access to information about accessible amenities funded through Accessible Australia through the Navigation, Access and Information fund.

What is the Navigation, Access and Information Management Fund?

Readily available information about accessible amenities and infrastructure is key to building more inclusive communities across Australia.

To improve access to key information and resources, the Australian Government has established the Navigation, Access and Information Management fund for the life of the Accessible Australia initiative.

The Navigation, Access and Information Management fund will support new and existing information resources such as webpages, mapping tools or other platforms relevant to communicating information regarding Accessible Australia amenities to people with disability and their carers.

Who can access Navigation, Access and Information Management funds?

Navigation, Access and Information Management funds are available to Commonwealth, state and territory government entities only.

Further information and contacts

Further information on Accessible Australia can be found on the Department of Social Services website.
